

“The Elusive Answer”

*Saying 'I AM' to me, should be helping you too, you see.
And the more we look for perfection,
the more we deny the inner feeling.*

*Yet the more we think we feel love and peace,
the more we define limitations, follow me?
It's a crazy game that man created in a wink, when he lost his inner feelings trying to expand his ability to think.*

*So, we have thought ourselves into the depths of technology,
such a scurry to label all things an "ology".
And then we'll argue to define our schemes, creating fancy labels and titles, then choices, oh what a wasted dream.*

*The reality we create then becomes a confusing one, indeed, with complications and complexities, even expanded oaths and creeds.
We swear our allegiance to everyone but the God within,
of course that's the last place we look for Him.*

What's on your horizon?

Morgan

Chai

*So, we continue our gyrations and searchings,
for the knowledge of all, the truth of all learnings.
But wherein does the elusive answer lie?
Exactly right here, "Within" you and I.*

© November 10, 1988, All Rights Reserved, Morgan Chai